Join Hunter Education/ RI Division of Fish and Wildlife in a free hands-on class in Wilderness Survival. This class is designed to provide outdoor enthusiasts and people hunting in remote locations the knowledge, skills and ability to make sound decisions in emergency situations in the wilderness. The class will address what to do for the treatment of cuts, broken bones, burns and gunshot wounds, as well as addressing first aid kits and basic survival equipment. All necessary class equipment will be provided.

Space is limited, so those wishing to participate must pre-register. Please contact:
